FOREWORD

Pottery is an art so ancient that it goes back almost to the gates of the Garden of Eden. It is probable that Adam himself was a part-time potter, and Eve, his better half and severest critic, no doubt gave him long lists of things to make for the household, which he probably forgot. No art is more useful than pottery, and in no art is utility so closely and happily combined with beauty. When we think of bringing principles of harmony and fine design into our homes we think instinctively of the potter and his craft. For almost a thousand years the ceramic world was dominated by China, to which we owe the "chinaware" on our tables. "There, all Europe has sat at China's feet" said Sir Lawrence Binyon. In recent years, however, most of the finest Chinese glazes have been rediscovered, and there is now no reason why modern potters can not equal or surpass the harmony of form of the finest Chinese ceramics. Canadian potters do not lack ability or experience, and the time has arrived for Canadian ceramics to come of age. It is hoped that the importance of this all-Canadian exhibition will be realized generally, and that it will receive the generous and enthusiastic support that it merits.
